A drama. A handsomely staged and highly dramatic production.

LEG BROKEN IN FRIENDLY TUSSE

Raymond Crixer, of North Stratton Street, Falls in Playground of High Street School and has Leg Broken above the Ankle.

The first serious accident that has happened at the Gettysburg public schools for a number of years occurred on Wednesday afternoon at the High Street building when Raymond Crixer, of North Stratton street, had his right leg broken.

Shortly after the gates were opened for afternoon school the boy engaged in a tussling match with Benjamin Veiner also of North Stratton street. They struggled for a few minutes and finally went down on the hard ground of the school yard, the Crixer boy underneath his companion. There was a sharp report, the lad gave a cry of pain and brief examination showed that the large bone in the right leg had been broken a short distance above the ankle.

The youngster was carried into the building by Mr. Elliott, the janitor, and several others and was later taken to his home. Dr. H. M. Hartman was summoned and reduced the fracture and in due course of time the boy will resume his studies.

The accident seemed to have little effect on his playmates for this morning they were busy with crack the whip, foot ball and other kindred sports.

WILL DEFY COUNCIL

On Wednesday night John Hays, president of Carlisle Gas and Water Company and of the New Carlisle Light, Heat and Power Company said that in a letter he will send Thursday evening to James W. Rekers, chairman of the Ordinance Committee of Carlisle borough council, he will refuse to accept a franchise granting ordinance and agreement thereto attached, acted upon at a special meeting of council last Saturday night.

Hays said it is nothing more than a hold-up on the part of Carlisle, and that it will accept the ordinance and sign the agreement or not get franchise for the new Light Heat and Power Company.

"But with it all," Hays added "we will just continue furnishing power whether we get franchise or not, as council cannot stop us."

Hays admitted getting $10,000 yearly as president of Gas and Water Company, and said he earned it. He declared the net revenue of the Gas and Water Company is eighty eight thousand dollars annually. There are four hundred thousand dollars stock outstanding and no indebtedness.

NITCHMAN GETS OFF

Edward Nitchman, of Huntingdon township, who appeared before the United States Court at Scranton to answer to the charge of fraudulent use of the mails was let off with a small fine and costs. As will be remembered he was charged with using his sister's name and securing $50 from a western man under promise to come out and marry him.

Mr. Nitchman had always previously been a good reputation and it is thought he entered into the correspondence in a spirit of fun but made the mistake of tampering with the postal laws.

The judge imposed a small fine and the entire costs of the suit which he cheerfully paid and was allowed to return home.

Adams County school teachers who attend the annual institute here the week of November 20-24 will receive $3.00 per day, according to the provisions of the new school code which also imposes a penalty of the same amount on all teachers who fail to attend and cannot give a satisfactory explanation to the county superintendent. The $3.00 allowance is fifty per cent more than given in previous years.

Preparations for the institute have been about completed by County Superintendent Roth. The gathering will be held in Bron Chapel and the instructors for the week will be Dr. C. C. Ellis, of Huntingdon, and Prof. O. L. Warren, of Elmira, New York. These two men will make addresses every morning and afternoon and in addition it is planned to have one other address each morning. Two of these will be given by President Granville and Prof. C. F. Sanders. The others have not yet been arranged.

The singing, which always proves one of the features of the Adams County institutes will be in charge of Prof. Robert J. McDowell, of Pittsburgh, who bears an excellent reputation as a song leader.

The evening entertainments will be a lecture by ex-Governor Robert E. Glenn, of North Carolina; concerts by the Commonwealth Male Quartet and the Goodfellows' Singers; and a unique attraction, the Tyrolean Alpine Singers and Yodlers.

BOLD DAYLIGHT HOLD UP

Help up by three unmasked men and shot at twice while strolling over the Blue Ridge mountains, near High Rock, was the experience of E. P. Smith, Waynesboro, Wednesday morning about 9.30 o'clock.

Mr. Smith describes the man who pointed the revolver at him, while another one rifled his pockets, as follows: He was about thirty five years old, of medium height, well built, of dark complexion, wore a black slouch hat and a dark blue suit.

Mr. Smith cannot describe the other two men, more than that they were younger, but he says that he could identify all three of the bold highway men, if at any time he would ever meet them again.

Mr. Smith had ninety cents with him, which he carried in his overcoat pocket. As the highwayman only searched his coat, vest and trousers, they found nothing and passed on.

After the three highwaymen had gone fifty yards, Mr. Smith, who remained standing where he was held up, called to the three men:

"I know you and will have you arrested before night."

The highwaymen answered this with two bullets, which whizzed close by him in rapid succession.

No arrests have been made.

AT THE WIZARD SATURDAY

A sure cure for a case of the glooms is to witness a performance of "The Girl Who Wasn't." There is a laugh for every breath you take. Mr. Norman Lee Swartout has written "The Girl Who Wasn't" with a double motive. First, to give the public a chance to laugh themselves sick and next to give Hal Johnson a vehicle to impersonate some of the new female types. Hal now has a chance to sing, dance, and talk himself through one of the funniest comedies ever presented. There are plots, and counterplots and tangled up situations, which one can hardly imagine being straightened out. Nevertheless, everything ends as it should end, and you will go home with the feeling that life isn't half so sad as you imagined it was.

GEORGE F. BAER HERE

George F. Baer, president of the Philadelphia and Reading railroad, came to Gettysburg on an inspection trip this morning staying here about twenty minutes. With him in his private train were Theodore Voorhes, the first vice president; A. T. Dice, general manager; Edson J. Weeks, general passenger agent; and R. J. Stackhouse, division superintendent.

THE High School Alumni will meet in the new High School building Thursday evening at seven o'clock. A full attendance is desired.

DAUGHTERS HOLD FINAL SESSION

Re-elect their Former Officers. Take Steps to Prevent Desecration of the Flag. Make Battlefield Tour and Return Home.

The Pennsylvania Daughters of the American Revolution completed their business sessions on Wednesday afternoon, many of them leaving for their homes while those who stayed spent today on the battlefield. All expressed themselves as delighted with their brief stay in Gettysburg and before the close of the conference resolutions were passed thanking the various local people who had been instrumental in the success of the week.

One of the principal matters of public interest which developed at Wednesday's sessions was the action taken providing that the laws governing the desecration of the flag should be printed and distributed by the Daughters to the schools of the state. This action was taken following an address by W. J. Heller, of Easton, who interested himself for a number of years to secure the placing of the American flag on every public school building, and by Mrs. Isabelle W. Ball, of Washington, who gave one of the best talks of the conference. During her address she showed a number of flags, outlining the American emblem's progress since the landing of Columbus. Miss Ellen Spencer Massey, representing the official organ of the Daughters, presented the work of that department. Much time was taken to the revision of the by-laws and other routine business occupied the remainder. A matter of interest was the statement that five "real daughters" are now living in Pennsylvania—their fathers having fought in the Revolution.

A feature of the sessions was the singing of Miss Bianca Holley, of New York, and the solos and duets by Miss Ruth Clutz and Miss Reba Miller, of Gettysburg.

The officers were all re-elected: regent, Mrs. Henry H. Cumings, Tidout; vice regent, Miss Helen E. C. Overton, Bellefonte; secretary, Miss Emma L. Crowell, Oak Lane; treasurer, Mrs. Thomas A. Morrison, Smethport; historian, Miss Mary I. Stille, West Chester. The office of state registrar was created and Miss E. E. Massey, of Philadelphia, elected.

No invitation was received for next year's conference and the selection of a place of meeting was left in the hands of the officers.

MULE SCARED AT AUTO

Amos Rickrode, Clear Springs, was painfully injured in a runaway accident while in Dillsburg Wednesday. He was driving on Main street, when E. M. Wolf, came up behind him in an automobile. The mule, which Mr. Rickrode was driving, became frightened and turned down York street between the Palace hotel and Dick's store and there collided with a four horse team. Mr. Rickrode was thrown to the street and his right leg was fractured just above the ankle. The fracture was such that the bone protruded from the flesh. He was carried into the hotel and Dr. W. L. Crawford reduced the fracture and gave him treatment. He was taken to his home in the evening.

WESTERN MARYLAND LIKELY TO BE TAKEN OVER

Long before the traffic agreement entered into between the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company and the Western Maryland Railroad Company was consummated it was common gossip in New York that the former company had for some time been picking up Western Maryland common stock in the open market. That this course has been consistently pursued by the New York Central up to this time, and has been the principal cause for the remarkable strength shown by the shares mentioned during the recent depression in the New York Stock Market, few can doubt.

As was recently stated by one of the best posted men on the inside policies of the two railroads mentioned, there is soon going to be brought about a complete amalgamation of these two roads, and as it does not appear at all probable that the Western Maryland is in a position to take over the New York Central the opposite will be the case.

FOURTH MEETING

The fourth educational meeting of Mt. Pleasant District was held at Swift Run school house, Oct. 19, teacher Mr. Sanders. The following teachers were present: Messrs. Rudisill, Stock, Sharets, Sponseller, Sanders and Misses Sadler, Jacobs, Kinne-man and Losman. The first topic "Arithmetic" was discussed by Misses Sadler and Kinne-man and Messrs. Stock, Sponseller, Sharets and Rudisill. It was said that too much is taught in the rural school that is of no use to the pupil, that arithmetic should be taught by object and supplementary work. Another topic "The Necessity of Regular Attendance" was discussed by Miss Jacobs and Messrs. Sanders, Stock, Rudisill, Sharets and Sponseller, in which it was said that the parents should sacrifice more than they do so that their children may obtain a better education than they. That no matter how bright the pupil is the connection of the lessons will be lost by irregular attendance. The next meeting will be held at Mt. Vernon, November 2, teacher, Mr. Sharets.

LET'S UP ON TOBACCO TRUST

Richardson Company Makes Settlement and Abandons Independent.

New York, Oct. 26.—Formal objections to the proposed plan of reorganization of the American Tobacco company were filed with the United States circuit court by counsel for the three associations of so-called independent tobacco manufacturers and producers.

Almost simultaneously it was announced that a settlement of all pending differences between the "tobacco trust" and R. R. Richardson, Jr., & Co., Inc., had been effected. This settlement removed one of the most important factors from opposition to the American Tobacco company's reorganization plan.

This company was subsidiary of the American Tobacco company and was a party to the government suit against the trust. It would consequently have the right to appeal in case the decision of the United States circuit court on the proposed reorganization did not meet its views. The independent companies do not have the right of intervention.

On the other hand, the Richardson company, it is stated, obtains all it has contended for in litigation extending over five years. Under the agreement the trust waives all claim to 60 per cent of the company's stock it held and sells back its holdings of $120,000 worth of bonds, which will be canceled. The trust thus permits the Richardson company to resume its independent position.

S. M. BUTLER KILLED ON GLIDDEN TOUR

Chairman of Contest Board Crushed Under Auto.

Tifton, Ga., Oct. 26.—The 1911 Glidden automobile tour was marred by a fatal accident, the victim being Samuel M. Butler, of New Rochelle, N. Y., chairman of the contest board of the American Automobile association and one of the most prominent automobile men in the United States.

Mr. Butler was killed three miles from Tifton when the automobile he was driving in the Glidden tour overturned.

P. J. Walker, of San Francisco, referee of the tour and his wife were severely injured, but Charles F. Kellman, of Rochester, N. Y., who was in the car, escaped with only a slight bruise or two.

Mr. Walker has a dislocated shoulder and broken collar bone, while Mrs. Walker's arm is broken and she is suffering greatly from shock. Both are in a hospital.

The accident was caused by a break in the steering gear, and Mr. Butler was crushed by the hub of a wheel. The machine was running at a good speed when the steering apparatus went wrong. The automobile plunged forward, turned a somersault and struck on its side. Mr. Butler was in the wreckage, but the other occupants were thrown to the road.

SEEK CLUE TO WOMAN'S DEATH

Detectives Search For Secret of Dr. Knabe's Life.

ASSISTANT IS QUESTIONED

Indianapolis Police Have No Clue to Account For Her Mysterious Murder—Probing Suicide Theory.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 26.—The detectives in their efforts to solve the mystery surrounding the murder of Dr. Helene Knabe, former state bacteriologist, who was found with her throat slashed in her apartment, took to police headquarters for examination Augusta Knabe, a cousin, and Katherine McPherson, assistant to the dead physician.

Why there was a delay of over an hour in summoning the police after Dr. Knabe's body was found by Miss McPherson and what were the conditions in detail were questions put to the two women. At Miss McPherson entered Dr. Knabe's flat and saw her body, with the gaping wound in the throat, she stated she first called by telephone Augusta Knabe from her home.

Augusta Knabe lives in a distant part of the city. The dead woman, Miss McPherson said, was lying on the bed, on her back, without cover. Her night dress was wadded under her arms. Miss McPherson added that she pulled the night dress down over Dr. Knabe's body before the arrival of physicians, who she summoned before the police were notified. This action, the detectives said, would explain the presence of blood on Dr. Knabe's left leg, for the night dress was soaked with blood as it lay crumpled under her chin.

The windows in the room were closed and locked and the furniture was in order. No weapon of any kind was found, and the only ingress and egress would have been by the dumb waiter to the basement, and this would not admit the body of a man.

Miss McPherson and Miss Knabe were with the body of Dr. Knabe for nearly an hour before the arrival of Dr. Ernest Reyer, who was the first of Dr. Knabe's other friends to enter the apartment. Miss McPherson denied emphatically, as did Miss Knabe, that she saw a knife that might have been used in killing the physician.

The detectives turned to investigation of a theory that Dr. Knabe might have ended her own life and that some of the group of her friends assembled in the flat before the police inquiry got under way may have sought to take away evidences of suicide.

Handsome and of brilliant intellectual attainment as she was, the police after much hard work were unable to discover that she had either an enemy or an intimate man friend. The theory of suicide seemed untenable because the knife with which Dr. Knabe was killed was not found and the coroner is sure the heavy slash that almost severed her head was struck as she lay in bed. There was no trail of blood on the floor. Dr. Knabe's assistant, Miss McPherson, said that her practice was increasing daily and that she was in cheerful humor.

The coroner having found no evidence of a personal attack and there being no indications of robbery, the police sought to find secret places in Dr. Knabe's life. They believed that the murder was done by a person that entered the door, not a window, of the apartment, did his work and departed through the door.

The crime is one of the most horrible in the criminal annals of Indiana.

HELEN TAFT THROWN IN FOX HUNT

President's Daughter Remounts and Finishes Chase.

Ipswich, Mass., Oct. 26.—Miss Helen Taft, daughter of President Taft, is recovering, from injuries received at a meeting of the Myopia Hunt club at the Ipswich trotting park.

James W. Appleton was acting as master of the hunt, and George Mandell, of Beverly, a close friend of the Taft family, was master of hounds. There were sixteen in the field, including Miss Taft, Miss Mandell and Mrs. J. N. Proctor.

When about half way over the course Miss Taft's horse stumbled and fell, throwing her. She went to the ground heavily, but was almost instantly on her feet.

Before those behind her were able to render any assistance Miss Taft pluckily remounted and finished the run, although it was evident that she was suffering pain.

At the Taft residence at Beverly Mrs. Taft said her daughter was not seriously injured.

GEMS WORTH $10,000 STOLEN

Thief Walks Off With Jeweler's Sample Case.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—A sample case containing about $10,000 worth of jewels belonging to W. C. Barry, a member of the wholesale jewelry house of Barry & Co., of Newark, N. J., was reported to have been stolen from the lobby of the Palmer house.

A man was seen leaving the lobby with the sample case, but persons who saw him stroll out leisurely believed he was its owner until after Barry had reported his loss.

Several persons who saw the stranger said he appeared to be a young man and was fairly well dressed. Barry furnished the police with a description of the jewels, which consisted chiefly of diamond scarfpins, diamond rings, diamond watch fobs and diamond lockets.

The Scrap Book

A Touch That Didn't Fail.

Alexander M. Dockery, former governor of Missouri, was at one time a member of the house of representatives and while filling the job made the acquaintance of a needy young man who formed the habit of borrowing too much money. Dockery got tired of being "touched" every few days and decided to put a stop to it. One day he was called from the house chamber by the borrowing friend.

"Say, Dockery," came the usual request, "can you lend me twenty?"

Dockery looked grieved and cast down, felt in all of his pockets and nearly succeeded in squeezing out a tear from his left eye.

"I haven't got a cent," he said in sepulchral tones.

At that moment he spied a page boy coming down the corridor—a boy who he knew was always hard up. The legislator saw a way of making an effective escape.

"I don't even know where I could borrow the money for you, Ben," he concluded. Turning quickly, he called the page. "Ray, my boy," he said kindly, "have you $20 with you?"

The boy put his hand into a pocket. Dockery took a few steps toward the door, the would be borrower began to mourn.

"Yes, sir," said the lad. "Here it is."—Popular Magazine.

A MENACE TO OIL SHIPS.

The Deadly Vapor That Stays After the Petroleum Is Gone.

The explosion of vessels carrying petroleum frequently occurs, and this is generally caused not by the cargoes of oil which they contain, but by the inflammable vapor which is left behind after the huge tanks of the ships have been emptied.

It is difficult to remove all the oil that adheres to the sides of the tank, and the evaporation of the oil film left in them after they have been pumped out takes place with great rapidity. Moreover, the vapor thus formed mingles readily with the air and is capable of rendering more than 2,500 times its own volume of the former inflammable. A spark may thus cause a fearful explosion in the hold of a ship that is apparently empty.

A film of petroleum spreading over the surface of the water has been known to produce enough of this volatile and dangerous vapor to cause a conflagration, by which a number of ships lying in a harbor have been suddenly enveloped in roaring flames as if by a stroke of magic.

In some parts of the world, as at Baku, the center of the Russian petroleum trade, a film of oil continually covers the water for a considerable distance from shore, and warnings of the danger there have more than once been given.—Exchange.

INDICT M'FARLAND FOR WIFE MURDER

Held in Poison Case After Testimony About Girl.

WOMAN ACCUSES HER

Friend of Florence Bromley in Pottsville Tells of Her Secret Visit to New York to See Accused.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 26.—Allison MacFarland, charged with the murder of his wife, Evelyn, who died a week ago of cyanide of potassium poisoning, was indicted by the Essex county grand jury.

The latest move in the case, the indictment handed up to Judge Davis in the court of oyer and terminer, resulted chiefly from evidence submitted to the inquest by Detective Sergeant Walter Godfrey, of Prosecutor Mott's staff, showing the relations of the prisoner and Miss Florence Bromley, the Philadelphia girl, whose letters were found in MacFarland's home.

Godfrey is said to have testified that the meetings of MacFarland and the Bromley girl always occurred in the same places in Philadelphia. It was further shown to the jury that the state hopes to prove that MacFarland lavished part of his income upon the young woman and at the same time subjected his wife to hardship.

What may prove important evidence for the prosecution was revealed by Mrs. Howard C. Moore, of Pottsville, Pa., a friend of Miss Florence Bromley, of Philadelphia, "the woman in the case." Mrs. Moore and Miss Bromley are friends, and on July 3 the Philadelphia girl paid a visit to the Moore family in Pottsville. Miss Bromley went to Pottsville to attend the Schuylkill County Centennial.

According to Mrs. Moore, the girl's visit, however, was only a "blind" to deceive her parents in order that she might slip over to New York to see "a gentleman friend," who, Mrs. Moore now believes, was MacFarland.

Mrs. Moore says that Miss Bromley did not remain in Pottsville for the two big events of the celebration—the military and firemen's parades, but left for New York on Friday afternoon.

Declaring that she feels she should reveal what she knows in the interest of justice, Mrs. Moore says: "After enjoying the celebration which she came to see for three days, Miss Bromley suddenly decided to go to New York. She told me she was going to visit friends there, who had an attractive young man boarding with them. She left her trunk at my house, taking only a suit case with her to New York."

"She returned on Monday night and said that she had a splendid time. She cautioned me not to mention anything about her trip to New York in future letters which I might write to Philadelphia, because her mother always read her letters and she didn't want her to know of this side trip. She said her mother did not like her gentleman friend, but she declared that she would marry him even if her parents' consent was not obtained. If she had to run away with him, Miss Bromley declared that she would stick to him and marry him."

"On the morning following her return to Pottsville, from New York city, Miss Bromley returned to Philadelphia. She checked her trunk to the Quaker City, but left behind her the suit case, from which she had removed the clothes that she took with her to New York city, leaving it entirely empty, to be called for by the expressman. When the latter came to secure the suit case I saw that the address, which Miss Bromley had put upon it, was Amper, N. J., and it was addressed to a man named MacFarland."

When Mrs. Moore read that Miss Bromley's name was mentioned in the MacFarland case, she recalled the girl's visit and decided that it was her duty to tell the officials all she knew.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—A bequest of $750,000 is made to Bryn Mawr college in the will of Miss Emma Carolina Woerishoffer, of New York, which was filed for probate in that city.

Miss Woerishoffer, who was graduated in the class of 1907, died on Sept. 11 from injuries received in an automobile accident near Binghamton, N. Y. After her graduation she became one of the most prominent social workers in the country, and at the time of her death was secretary of the Women's Trades Union league. She possessed a large fortune.

The press dispatches contained the only news of the bequest received at Bryn Mawr. At the office of Miss M. Cary Thomas, the president, it was said they had no intimation of a bequest from Miss Woerishoffer, who is well remembered by many of the faculty.

"We were greatly grieved to hear of Miss Woerishoffer's death," the officers of the college said, "and the news of the bequest comes entirely as a surprise. Of course, we can only hope it is true."

Miss Woerishoffer was an enthusiastic motorist and drove her own car on tours of New York, which she made as special agent for the New York state department of labor.

While driving her car near Binghamton, N. Y., on Sept. 11, the machine went over a steep embankment. Miss Woerishoffer died in the Roosevelt hospital, New York, a few hours after the accident. A woman companion who was with Miss Woerishoffer in the machine escaped without injury.

ON TO PEKIN

Chinese Rebels Decisively Defeat Government Troops.

Shanghai, Oct. 26.—General Yin Zhang, at the head of 21,000 imperial troops, with 170 guns, attempted to force the mountain pass on the rail road dividing Hu-Poh and Honan provinces and was repulsed with great slaughter.

The hills in the vicinity of the pass had been crowned with artillery under the direction of Li Yuen Hung, commanding the revolutionists. The execution of these guns firing shrapnel was fearful as the imperial troops entered the pass. In addition the troops of the revolutionists lay in ambush on the route followed by the imperial army in its retreat from the pass.

The imperial general ordered a retreat, and under the cover of his heavy guns succeeded in drawing off part of his army, although thousands were left dead on the field and thousands threw down their arms and welcomed the rebels.

This decisive battle now clears the way for the rebel march on Peking, as the remnants of the imperial army, which is now entrenched at Wu Sing, will not be able to oppose the advance of the republicans.

GIANTS BEAT ATHLETICS 4-3

Triumph in Tenth Inning After Batting Rally.

A PLUCKY UPHILL FIGHT

Mackmen Had Game Won Up to the Ninth, When New York Tied the Score and Got Winning Run in the Tenth.

World's Series Percentages.

Won. Lost. P. C.
Athletics 3 2 .600
New York 2 3 .400

New York, Oct. 26.—Like a bolt of lightning from a cloudless sky came victory for the Giants at the Polo grounds when they defeated the Athletics in the tenth inning by a score of 4 to 3.

It was New York's second triumph in the series for the world's championship, the Quakers already having captured three contests.

The Giants won by the pluckiest kind of uphill work, which bristled with hard and timely hitting in the ninth and tenth innings. Up to that point defeat for McGraw's men seemed inevitable, and more than 33,000 persons were convinced of the fact, when suddenly the New Yorks exploded a bomb which created one of the wildest scenes ever witnessed in base ball.

An error by Larry Doyle was the forerunner of the Athletics' three runs in the third inning. Without this misplay the visitors would have been blanked in that period. But subsequently, with two men on bases, O. D. Ring broke the heart of Rube Marquard by driving a terrific hit far into the field bleachers for a home run, scoring Lapp and Combs ahead of him. This disaster forced the retirement of Marquard and plunged the big crowd into deepest gloom, for Jack Combs meanwhile was in magnificent form and pitched the cleverest kind of ball for six successive innings.

Succeeding Marquard, Red Ames also pitched superbly during the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh innings, the Athletics making but two hits and falling easy victims to his change of pace. An error by Collins enabled the Giants to make their first run in the last half of the seventh, in which Crandall was sent in to hit for Ames, and then, assuming the task in the box, Crandall furnished another agreeable surprise by holding the Mackmen harmless for the rest of the battle.

Incidentally Crandall covered himself with glory when he hammered out a great two-bagger in the ninth inning, which sent Herzog, who had also doubled, across the plate. Two were out at the time, and Combs confidently expected to dispose of Devore, the next batsman. But Little Josh, who had been rather weak with the stick in his previous appearances at the plate, smashed a red-hot single to left field, which sent Crandall home with the tying run.

Doyle redeemed himself in the last half of the tenth inning by fining Plank, who had succeeded Combs, for his fourth safe hit, a rattling two-bagger to left. He scooted to third when Plank fielded Snodgrass' bun, a second too late to shut him off. Murray followed with a short fly to Murphy, upon which Doyle did not attempt to go home, but Merkle lined the ball close to the foul line in front of the right wing of the grand stand, and when Murphy caught it Doyle sprinted across the plate with the deciding tally.

Many exciting ball games have been witnessed in this city, but this one was the limit. Suddenly raised from the depths of despair, the crowd went into paroxysms of boundless joy and for fully ten minutes after the winning run had been scored men and women rushed about the stands and over the field as if they had lost their senses.

The paid attendance was 33,288. The gross receipts were $69,483; the national commission's share was $5938.40, while each club's rake-off was $31,222.50. The club's

If the field beans were retarded in growth during the drought and are inclined to be late in drying out one can hasten the process by pulling the crop at once. This will tend to reduce loss by mildew or rotting after the beans are stacked.

The remarkable productivity of the present season is shown in no more interesting way than in the unusual number of ripe light red apples which in the past have been scarce.

"Dad," said a boy to his father one day when they were riding through their vast estates, "how did you get all this? Mother has often said that before you and she were married you were a tutor in a college."

"Yes, my boy, I was an instructor in analytical chemistry. The students who studied under me worked in the college laboratory. From my early youth I had shown a fondness for chemical processes and before I was eighteen had made several discoveries, though none of them so important as one I made several years later."

"Your mother was in the woman's college attached to the university, and she and I became acquainted."

"Your mother's parents being poor, as soon as she was graduated she accepted a position as governess with a very rich lady, whose children she taught. A year after she left the university she came into the laboratory one day to see me, and by her appearance I knew at once that she was in great trouble."

"I have come to you," she said, "there being no one else in whom I dare confide. I wish you to advise me. The lady by whom I am employed took a great fancy to me as soon as I entered her service and last week, when she went away to be one of a house party consisting of very rich people like herself, left her most valuable jewels in my care. They have been kept in a safe in her bedroom, and she entrusted the key with me. The day after her departure she directed me by letter to send her a certain brooch she wished to wear with a costume it especially fitted. I unlocked the safe, took out the brooch and while packing it left the safe door open. When I returned to the room before locking the safe it occurred to me to see if the jewels were there. A box containing the most valuable ones had disappeared. What shall I do?"

"In tracking the thief I could be of no assistance to the poor girl, but I had been making some experiments with results that suggested to me a possible temporary solution of the difficulty. There had then recently been discovered the substance called radium, which you will soon learn something about at school. Its influence on other substances is remarkable. I had used it in the laboratory in the little glass receptacles called test tubes and had found that it had turned them a beautiful blue color. It occurred to me that the shade was similar to that of sapphires. This thought resulted in these riches we now possess."

"How? Go on with the story."

"It led me to a series of experiments. I exposed crystals of different colors to the influence of radium, putting the crystals and the radium away together in a dark closet. The white crystals had become topazes, the blue crystals emeralds, and violet crystals were turned to sapphires. I had learned the secret of the constitution of gems. They were simply crystals that had been acted upon by radium."

"I told your mother that I might duplicate the lost gems if I only knew their shapes, colors and sizes, where upon she told me that the owner kept photographs of them to be used to identify them in case of their loss at their exact size. She brought me the photographs, and without losing a moment I had crystals cut to match them and exposed the crystals to radium."

"The danger was that the owner of the jewels would call for them before they had been exposed long enough to change their color. Besides, those I was making might not come out the right shade. I resolved on an expedient. As soon as any of the crystals became gems I took them to a jeweler and exchanged them for those whose color matched the originals and had those I received cut the exact shape. Fortunately the lady remained away a sufficient time to meet these requirements, and she never knew that her gems had been stolen."

"But was that honest, dad?"

"Had the gems been spurious it would not have been honest, but they were real. The originals had been made in nature's laboratory, just as I made these in mine."

"How did you make so much out of it?"

"I simply manufactured gems and sold them without imparting my secret. But in time a chemist in Germany made the same discovery as I, and those scientists over there used to give all their discoveries to the world. He published the secret, and henceforth all gems became of little value. Consequently they are no longer prized by the rich. They are as beautiful, now that they are manufactured by man, as they were when nature was their only maker, but value depends on rarity, and since gems are no longer rare they are no longer valuable."

"What has taken the place of these old fashioned ornaments?"

"Those substances which nature used to manufacture them. Recently there has been a craze for radium and certain like substances discovered since radium became known. The richest people now think nothing of spending a million or so on a bit of radium so arranged as to be worn as an ornament. Fortunes have been kept pace with the change in decorations, and the very wealthy are now able to pay for these newly discovered properties, some of which cost millions for a single grain."

ASPHALT ON MACADAM.

New York Highway Commission to Improve Newburg Roads.

At the annual session of the Newburg Board of supervisors last December the New York state highway commission submitted a proposal for paving Cohecton turnpike with brick at the joint expense of the state and county. This method of improvement was strongly urged by County Engineer Smith. The supervisors decided, however, that in view of the state of the county's finances with respect to good roads they could not afford to obligate the county for half the cost of brick paving, and accordingly they tabled the communication from the state commission.

Now the state authorities have decided to wait no longer for the co-operation of the county in improving the road. The state highway commission has prepared plans for macadamizing two or more miles of the turnpike in the Coldenham section, where the condition of the thoroughfare is worst.

The macadam will be given an asphalt surfacing and the result will be a fine stretch of road. The improvement may be later extended and a fine roadway provided all the way between Newburg and Montgomery.

Not Cool Enough

To start your furnace fires and keep them going from now until April but it is too cool to be without any fire at all in the house. Our small heaters at $1.25 and $1.75 will take the chill off of any room in a very few minutes and keep it comfortable as long as you need heat. The cost of the gas for these heaters is a minor matter when compared to keeping up a furnace fire or fire in a large coal heater and it is the most economical fuel you can procure. See the heaters in the window of our store on Baltimore Street.

WATER HEATERS

Those instantaneous water heaters are the very thing for the person who wants to take a bath immediately after he rises one of these chilly mornings and doesn't care to wait fifteen minutes or a half hour for water of comfortable temperature. We will be glad to show them to you.

DROP LIGHTS

The evenings are getting longer and the thing to make home more cosy and attractive is a drop gas light. It is the one light by which reading is a pleasure and adds to the appearance of the room.

WASHING THE DISHES.

Suggestions to His Brothers by the Club Woman's Husband.

Tonight I want to offer my brother husbandettes a valuable hint about dishwashing.

When you do the dishes don't set the dishpan in the bottom of the sink, as most men do. Sinks may be the right height for women, but they are too low for men.

For months I suffered from crick in the back, aching shoulders, stiff neck and abdominal cramps. I consulted our family physician without obtaining relief.

At last, quite by accident, I lit on the cause of my trouble. A pile of skillets and saucepans had been left in the sink, and I put the dishpan on them. Then I was not obliged to bend over so far as usual, and that day I had hardly any lumbago pains at all.

Since then I have rested the dishpan on a couple of bricks placed in the bottom of the sink, and I wash the dishes standing almost erect. The roses are coming back into my cheeks, and our whole home is brighter as a result of my lucky discovery.

I am sure that my men readers will be saved many miserable hours if they will follow my suggestion. The bricks may be used between times as door stoppers, foot warmers or nutcrackers. Tomorrow evening I will tell you what I know about washing granite ware.—Newark News.

Some idea of the magnitude of the irrigation work which has been undertaken by the national government is gained from recent reports, which show that from the passage in 1902 of the law authorizing these irrigation enterprises up to the present there has been expended $70,000,000, while $48,000,000 will be available for use during the next four years. As soon as the tracts on which this money is to be expended are put under ditch and sold the money received will be returned to the fund, to be used in similar manner for the development of other enterprises.

The writer makes no claim to being a crop forecaster and particularly of the long distance kind, but is inclined to think that with all kinds of fruits in such prodigious abundance this season it is more than likely that a good many vines, bushes and trees will take more or less of a layoff next year. For this reason it would not be a bad idea for the provident housewife to lay by this season a generous store of such fruits as are still available, including grapes, peaches, pears, etc. It is not likely that in another decade will fruits of all kinds be as plentiful and cheap as they have been this season.

FOR

COUNTY COMMISSIONER

The office of Commissioner is the one office within the gift of the county that should most deeply interest the taxpayer. The County Commissioner can more than any other man, squander the resources of the county, or by careful and economical administration of the office, save the county thousands of dollars annually. It goes then without saying that only men of known business ability, utmost integrity and thorough honesty should be elected to the office. To this latter class belongs our candidate, S. McEicholtz, of Menallen Twp., a staunch and loyal Democrat. Starting but a few years ago upon borrowed capital, he has, by the exercise of keen business judgment, honesty in dealing and strict economy, risen to an enviable financial position in his community. None can say aught against him. Even those, who from party reasons are working hardest to defeat him, admit there is nothing against either his fitness for the office or his character as a man. This is the candidate we are presenting to you Mr. Voter. Vote for him.

PLAYERS WHOSE WORK ATTRACTS

Early Football Games Give Good Line on All American Men.

EXPECT MUCH OF PENDLETON.

Many Critics Predict He Will Eclipse Last Season's Performances—Yale to Depend on Anderson for Line Plunging—Butler and Mercer Two Stars.

By TOMMY CLARK.

The football season has now advanced far enough to get a line on a number of men on the different teams who promise to be competitors for All American honors. Of course some of these men who now show such great promise are likely to fall by the wayside as the championship games approach, and others who are now tolling faithfully on the scrub teams will take their places when the days of the big games roll around. At the same time there are some players who, except for accidents, are pretty sure to make good.

At Princeton there are three men who have attracted the attention of the Tiger coaches on account of their brilliant playing. They are Pendleton, Penfield and Baker. Pendleton, of course, was well known on account of his brilliant playing last season. But, if possible, he promises to even better that record. This year the coaches have moved him to quarterback, and in his new position he promises to do more spectacular work than at halfback last fall. Pendleton is one of the fastest men on the gridiron today. Best of all he is a quick starter and a wonderful dodger. The two other men who are displaying unexpected speed are Baker and Penfield. Baker is fast, and while not essentially a line breaker, he is doing his share of the attack.

The workman over the continued absence of Captain Hart has been relieved somewhat by the splendid playing of Penfield at fullback. This youngster, who is not particularly heavy, has proved a good line plunger, and in open field work he is a wonder.

On the Yale team there are few men who stand out conspicuously above their fellows. Instead of having one or two shining lights, the whole team seems to shine with about the same luster. In the back field, though, is one man, Fullback Anderson, who is daily attracting the attention of the coaches. He learned most of his football at the University of Wisconsin, but is still eligible for the Yale team. He has been used in all of the Eli games to date and seems to be the only man who can be depended upon to gain consistently on line plunges. Two other men who are displaying good qualities are Captain Howe, the veteran quarterback, and Philbin, the latter a brother of the Elis in 1909. Howe, in addition to maintaining his high standard of directing the team play, is kicking field goals in clever fashion.

Butler, the Cornell quarterback, promises to become the best football player the Ithacans ever developed.

At the University of Pennsylvania there is one man who is outshining every other player on the team. He is Captain Mercer, last year the pick of many critics for All American fullback. It is doubtful if there is a faster man in football togs on the American gridiron than Mercer. This year he seems to be in superb condition. He starts quickly and gets up his speed wonderfully. He has increased his value to the team nearly 50 per cent by mastering the use of the straight arm in warding off tacklers. Mercer does this better than any man Pennsylvania ever had except Holbeck of the 1908 team.

HEANY WILL COME BACK

John Allen Heany, the young inventor of York, whose tungsten lamp patent applications were rejected by the patent office at Washington this week, is not discouraged although a little disappointed when his efforts to have the courts enjoin the commissioner of patents from refusing applications as to tungsten lamps.

That Heany will "come back" there is every indication, for he is at present working upon a device on which he expects to get a patent, and then the tungsten lamp will not be worth bothering about, in his estimation. When interviewed in his work rooms in Washington the other night the rooms were found to be lighted with tungsten lights of his own construction.

If you are interested at all, in purchasing a home or property of any kind, you will lose nothing by coming to see us before you buy. We are selling right along, because we have been able to give the buyers what they want at actual values. Owners cannot use us to get twice what their properties are worth, but we can and do sell when an owner is willing to take what his property is worth.
